A story of race in contemporary America experienced through the eyes of a child.

SYNOPSIS

A troubled boy meets his father for the first time and is forced to discard what he thought he knew about himself.

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

When someone asked me why I wanted to make a film about a moment in my life, I gave pause. It is a valuable question, and I had to reflect for a moment before replying. Being an artist means never averting the eye, we must bear witness to the ugliness of what is true. I think that the comfortable American ideology of racial tolerance is quickly reverting - and we must not let it so easily go.

FILMMAKERS

TRACY BROWN

A biracial writer-director whose films often focus on social outsiders, personal identity, and expressions of inner struggle, Tracy Brown's films have been showcased in the European Independent Film Festival, New Filmmakers Film Festival, DEACenter Film Festival, Hollyshorts and Boston International Film Festival. Originally from Florida, Tracy now resides in San Francisco.

STU BARNES

Stu Barnes is a film editor working for some of the most prestigious editorial and post production houses in California for over a decade. Stu's work ranges from music videos for top 100 Billboard acts to nationally broadcast television campaigns. He is a proud collaborator with those who look for new perspectives in cinema.
